

My mom is special because of all that she was. She passed away 9 yrs ago from ovarian cancer. But she still has a big part in my life. I hang a stocking up for her on Christmas and make her a cake for her birthday. She was stubborn and even when the pain was unbearable she tried not to show it. She showed me not to give up even when everything seems against you. She never got to meet my son but when I was pregnant, I craved every childhood food she had made, I knew she was with me.
